

THE PRESS AND THE FOREIGNERS.

The Argonaut states that for some weeks an American woman has been trying to run a coffee house in San Francisco with the assistance of three American waiter girls. In front of the coffee house four fat, lazy men are strolling and warning the passers by not to patronize the house because it is boycotted.

The Argonaut further declares that none of the daily papers in San Francisco dare publish this item for fear of losing the support of the foreigners who are working up this boycott. There are times when the boycott can be used with might and effect, but when foreigners come over here and try to prevent American women from making an honest living, if there is any manhood or decency left in Americans, they ought to take these louts on the sidewalk by the neck and kick them into the gutter.

We would like to see a boycott established by Americans on the cowardly, venal, truckling sheets who lick the boots of every nationality for subscriptions except Americans. There are newspapers and politicians who would crawl in the road for the support of men who hate everything in the United States except the money they can make by living here. If these newspapers and politicians are so fond of people they truckle to let these people bear the burden of supporting them. When an American citizen forgets his citizenship and makes an ass of himself the papers hold him up to scorn and ridicule, but let a foreigner do the same thing and his acts are carefully glossed over for fear his countrymen will take exceptions to any criticism.

Every foreigner who comes to the country is supposed to have the same rights and privileges that an American has and is entitled to them as long as he minus his business, pays his taxes and obeys the laws. The idea that he should have more privileges than native Americans is something well calculated to take one's breath away.

San Francisco should be ashamed of itself for allowing four men—who can hardly speak the language of the country—to stalk up and down before the place of business of an honest American woman and say that she shall not be allowed to sell coffee and manage her business in her own way.

MISK ABOUT MINERS.

The Nevada City Herald seems to labor under the impression that men who work underground in the mines are not capable of writing a word in the English language. Our esteemed contemporary should circulate among the underground toilers more. There are many men in the Grass Valley mines who write well and intelligently on almost any subject one may spring upon them. They are mostly given to scientific investigations, and in that some of our miners will hold a good hand, so to speak, with the most learned men. And moreover many of our underground miners are good public speakers; clear, forcible and logical some of them are eloquent. It is a great mistake to put the working miners down as men who do not think about anything outside their work. They are mostly reading men, and they can talk and write with force.—Grass Valley Union.

—The Salt Lake Democrat advocates the nomination by the Gentiles of General P. E. Connor for Mayor of Salt Lake City. It dubs him "Old Honest, Able and Fearless." Many years ago, during the reign of King Brigham, Connor was in Command of the United States forces at Camp Douglas and had an office in Salt Lake City. Brigham hated him, but nevertheless desired to meet the General, and sent one Hempstead to ask him to call at the royal residence. "Tell Brigham Young," said General Connor, "that I am a representative of the United States Government in Utah. If he has any business with me he can find me at my office. I have no desire to call on him." General Connor never met Brigham Young, although it was the fashionable thing in those days for Federal officials to toady to the great autocrat.
